DETAILED ACTION

Introduction

1. Applicants' amendments and remarks filed on 10/14/2008 have been entered. Claim 1 is active.
2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
3. In response to the amendments, the grounds of rejection have been updated as set forth below. Rejections not maintained are withdrawn.

Rejections Based on Prior Art

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Cox et al. [EP 1 010 793].

Cox's invention relates to a core material suitable for use in closed mould systems. The core material is based on at least one fibrous web containing a foam-structure within the web [abstract]. The foam structure can be prepared from expandable microspheres which are introduced into the web using an optionally foamed binder material [0015]. The core material has a bending stiffness which allows it to be easily bended around corners (drapable) [0017]. The expanded microspheres (members) have a diameter of 10-100 μm [0028]. The core material has open channels and permeable to resin [0014].

For claim 1, Cox is silent about the average diameter of the channels. However, since Cox teaches the same subject matter of the same structure and composition, made by the same method, and for the same use, a workable average diameter of the channels is deemed to be either anticipated, or obviously provided by practicing the invention of prior art, dictated by the same end use requirements.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicants argue at Remarks page 2

“Claim 1 requires that the members have an average diameter as defined by the diameter of the enveloping circle and the plane of the material of less than 1.5mm and the channels have an average diameter of less than 0.75mm. Neither of these parameters have been taught or suggested by the prior art, therefore, such parameters cannot be obvious from the prior art.”

However, since Cox teaches the same subject matter of the same structure and composition, made by the same method, and for the same use, a workable average diameter of the channels is deemed to be either anticipated, or obviously provided by practicing the invention of prior art, dictated by the same end use requirements.

For the same reasons set forth above, applicants' remaining arguments at pages 2-3 are unpersuasive.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
